CFP, shared on behalf of the Journal of the Philosophy of History: "Hannah Arendt and Michel Foucault: A Comparison of their Historical Methodologies"

This forthcoming special issue of the Journal of the Philosophy of History will explore Arendt's and Foucault's approaches to historical method (broadly conceived) and intellectual history and, relatedly, their approaches to modernity and "critique" in general.

The full CFP (as well as guidelines and more information) can be found on the Journal of the Philosophy of History's website: <https://brill.com/view/journals/jph/jph-overview.xml>

Please direct all questions to the special issue's editor, Dr. Edmund Neill (Associate Professor of Modern History, Northeastern University, London).
